CHILDREN WITH SPECIAL NEEDS SHOWCASE SCIENCE SKILLS

Glen Cove, NY May 20, 2010 –On May 18th the students at the School for Language and Communication Development proudly displayed their science projects at the SLCD Science Fair.

More than 200 people attended to see the student's science projects ranging in topics from magnets, erupting volcanoes and the five senses to electricity and plant life. Attendees marveled at the hard work and dedication put forth by SLCD students and all were proud of their accomplishments.

The School for Language and Communication Development provides special education services to children with language disorders including those along the autism spectrum continuum. SLCD's program has grown from 36 preschoolers to more than 400 children ages 18 months to 21 years in elementary, middle and high school programs. As SLCD celebrates its 25th Anniversary this year, its mission to meet the special needs of children unable to speak or communicate still remains constant and the School's motto "Language Learning for Lifelong Success" is continuously upheld.
